SEEK AND DESTROY

POLICE have vowed to hunt down and destroy a ferocious Staffordshire bull terrier in Harlow amid growing concerns that its next victim could be a child.

The owners of the dangerous dog are reported to have stood by and let it attack on four occasions in recent weeks and detectives have decided enough is enough.

Inspector Bob Adams, of the Harlow Neighbourhood Policing Team, said he would strive to find the dog responsible and push for it to be destroyed under the 1991 Dangerous Dogs Act.

"Essex Police does not take incidents like this lightly," he told the Star. "This is clearly a dangerous dog and it will be treated as such."

"We will be interviewing the owners and they could face going in front of a court where it will be decided what to do with their dog. The owners could be asked to muzzle their dog - but I will be pushing for this animal to be put down as it could be a child or adult that is attacked next time."

The development came as the bull terrier claimed its latest victim, attacking 10-month-old Jack Russell puppy Oscar, belonging to Caroline Smith (38), on Friday evening on Harlow Common.

Ms Smith, of Radburn Close, Harlow, claimed the dog - which was on an extendable leash - turned violently on her pet after he approached it.

"Oscar's such a lovely, friendly little dog - he wouldn't hurt a fly," she said. "He was just going to say hello, as dogs do, when I heard someone screaming: 'It's got hold of that puppy!'"

"I rushed round the corner and saw this brown and white Staffordshire terrier had got Oscar by the neck and was biting him. The owners weren't bothered - they certainly didn't try very hard to pull their dog off him."

Vets at the People's Dispensary for Sick Animals, in The Stow, told Ms Smith the bull terrier had narrowly avoided severing an artery in Oscar's neck and said her pet had come perilously close to sustaining very serious larynx damage.

"It could have been so much worse - he could have lost an eye or even been killed," said Ms Smith. "The police need to find this dog before a child becomes its next victim."

Swimmers get in hot water for wrong trunks

YOUNG swimmers found themselves at the shallow end of Harlow Council policy when they were thrown out of the town's pool – for wearing the wrong kind of trunks!

Marc Smith (13), his brother Ryan (12) and their cousin Eliot Lee (12) went to Harlow Pool, in First Avenue, on Thursday.

But after paying the entrance fee, changing and heading out to the poolside, their session came to an abrupt end when an attendant told them their knee-length swimming shorts were "inappropriate".

The boys, who are regular swimmers and have used the pool many times before, questioned the decision but were told to change into traditional tight trunks or go home.

When Mark and Ryan's mother Amanda Smith, of Paddock Mead, Harlow, heard about the episode she called the pool manager for an explanation and was told the new policy had been introduced for "health and safety reasons".

Mrs Smith (36) told the Star: "I had the manager tied up in knots. He said that the drag of the material could impede swimming – but surely it comes down to how strong a swimmer you are? Marc, Ryan and Eliot are all competent swimmers; my two were members of Hoddesdon Swimming Club."

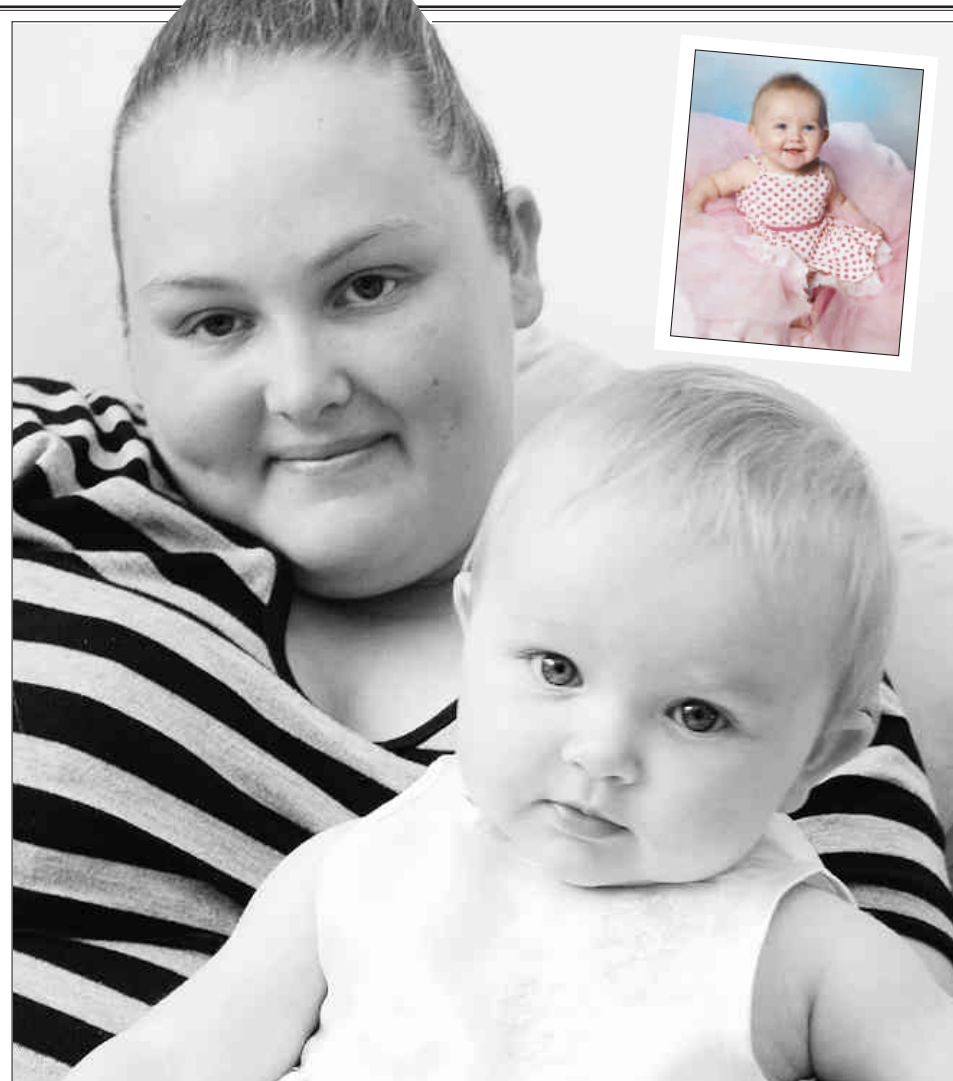

She added there was no dress code warning of the policy displayed at the pool or on its website. A spokesman for Harlow Council, which operates the pool, said: "Over the past few months we have seen an increase in the number of people wearing three-quarter length shorts for swimming."

"This type of swimwear is specifically designed for strong swimmers, as it creates extra drag. However, it is widely sold and available to swimmers of all abilities who may not be aware of this."

"Unfortunately, we have no way of knowing whether the people wearing these shorts are proficient swimmers or not when they enter the pool."

"Therefore, in the interests of their safety, we have introduced a dress code. The swimmers were given a full refund."

Hospital brushes off hygiene accusations

Kacey's our Superkid 2007 winner!

SAY hello to Kacey Daniels, the bonny baby who stole readers' hearts to be voted the overall winner of our Superkids 2007 competition. Nine-month-old Kacey, of Northbrook, Harlow, was one of hundreds of babies and toddlers who entered the annual contest run by Herts and Essex Newspaper.

Kacey, who was in the 0-9 months category, had her picture taken at Harlow's Harvey Centre by professional children's photographic company Babyprints.

Her mum Amanda Marsh (21) said of her daughter, who was born last November: "I think it's her big, beautiful eyes and her smile that wins people over. We're over the moon that she won."

"I was only thinking earlier today that even though she hadn't won she got her picture in the paper and that was enough – but then the phone rang and it was the paper telling me she'd won; I couldn't believe it!"

"We are all completely amazed – but not that surprised as, of course, we think she was the winner anyway!"

Kacey's win sees her scoop our top prize of a Fuji digital camera and a framed print worth £175.

● THE other Superkids category winners are Brooke Harvey (10-18 months), Jocelyn Addicott (19-36 months) and Leighanie Hanley (3-6 years).

HARLOW'S Princess Alexandra Hospital has mounted a strenuous defence of its food hygiene record after a senior national politician warned of poor standards in its kitchens.

Norman Lamb, the Liberal Democrat Parliamentary health spokesman, has included PAH in a dossier of hospital failings on cleanliness which he claims are risking patient safety.

The research is based on applications made under the Freedom of Information Act to 25 per cent of English local authorities in May.

Environmental services chiefs at Harlow Council were among those to confirm poor standards at PAH, with problems in the main kitchen as well as on a ward and at a licensed bar on the site.

In the main kitchen, inspectors found cleaning records were not kept up-to-date and seals on a sink and tiles needed replacing. They felt standards were in danger of deteriorating "to a point where the facilities are in breach of food hygiene regulations".

In the bar, cold meats and dairy foods were sometimes stored at up to five degrees C higher than the correct temperature, a grill and ceiling tiles were dirty, the dishwasher was out of order and sinks were used for both hand-washing and the storage of dirty equipment when rules state separate sinks should be used.

And in Ray Ward, fridge temperatures were again found to be too high, cupboards were dirty and the lighting in food preparation areas was deemed insufficient.

However, the deficiencies pale into insignificance compared to those at some other UK hospitals, with 11 found to have vermin infestations and others with food handling equipment contaminated by medical waste.

Presenting his report, Mr Lamb said it painted a "shocking picture" of hospital food hygiene.

"It is simply unacceptable that such terrible practices are taking place in an environment where hygiene and safety should be paramount," he said.

But a spokesman for the PAH NHS Trust said all the issues highlighted had already been addressed, with Ray Ward upgraded and the cafeteria having undergone a £180,000 renovation since the inspections.

"We have to take on board what the council people say but we're also pretty proud of the quality of food we serve," he said.

"In an assessment carried out by the independent Patient Environment Assessment Team, we were scored 'good' for the quality of our food."

He added: "We have in-house caterers – we don't contract out like some hospitals – and they have won several awards. Also, in patient surveys time and again the biggest thing people praise us for is our food."

EPPING MP Eleanor Laing was this week reselected as Conservative Parliamentary candidate for the town in the next General Election.

In a unanimous vote, members of Epping Forest Conservative Association backed Mrs Laing, who has been MP for the area since 1997 when she took over from Steven Norris.

She was appointed in July as shadow minister of justice and has previously served as shadow minister for women and equality, shadow minister for women, opposition spokeswoman on home, constitutional and legal affairs, spokeswoman for education and skills, opposition spokeswoman on constitutional affairs and opposition whip.

Mrs Laing said: "I pledge to go on working for everyone who lives in my constituency and hope to do so for many years to come."

Kitten shot by sadist with an air weapon

By GEMMA GARDNER
star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

POLICE are investigating an incident in which a kitten was shot in the head and another injured in Old Harlow on Friday.

The 11-month-old pet is recovering at home with owner David Newberry, of Jocelyns, after being shot by a callous sadist with what is thought to have been an air rifle.

On the same evening, another of Mr Newberry's five cats was also injured and subsequent checks by a veterinarian indicate the animals may have suffered earlier attacks.

Only last September, the Star reported how a kitten belonging to Bentley Drive resident Rodney Linggood was killed by being shot in the face at close range.

Mr Newberry let his five cats out as usual on Friday night and was horrified when two of them returned with wounds that appeared to be consistent with them having been shot.

"The kittens came home both covered in blood," he said. "The first one, George, had an injured paw and the second, Sophie, had an injury to its head."

He described the injury to the female kitten as "a puncture wound between the eyes".

Mr Newberry took both animals to a veterinary surgery on Saturday morning where vets were alarmed by the amount of blood.

"The vet told me that it was likely that the

FLASHBACK: How the Star reported last September's fatal airgun killing of a cat kitten spat the pellet out," said Mr Newberry. "However, following an x-ray he told me that they had discovered the kitten had a pellet in his head from a previous incident, which he estimated was two to three weeks ago."

The vet was unable to establish whether George's paw injury was as a result of a gun shot.

"My cats have been coming home with injuries not consistent with being involved in a fight," added Mr Newberry. "Some of the kittens have returned home with bruising that would seem to be consistent with someone kicking them."

"Had the kittens been involved in fighting, I would expect them to also have scratch marks."

He has reported the matter to police, who confirmed they are investigating but declined to comment further.

Figures show crimewave at rail station

HARLOW Town Station is the scene of dozens of crimes each year, according to figures obtained by the Star.

The group most likely to become victims are cyclists.

According to the figures released to the Star by British Transport Police under the Freedom of Information Act, thefts of bicycles has reached epidemic proportions at the town's main railway halt, with 52 stolen in the past two-and-a-half years. In the first six months of 2007 alone, 15 cyclists returned to find their bikes missing.

The 30-month period from January 2005 to June 2007 also saw 12 cases of assault, 11 other violent incidents, 10 breaches of public order, 10 incidents of railway trespass, seven robberies and five cases of harassment. There were also 23 thefts from vehicles and 18 of personal property.

In total, 217 crimes were recorded at the station during the period, with 90 in 2005, 78 in 2006 and 49 in the first six months of 2007.

Harlow Mill Station was not without crime problems either, but here vandalism was the greatest problem with 23 cases of criminal damage and seven of graffiti during the 30 months. In total, there were 82 crimes, with 37 in 2005, 35 in 2006 and 10 in the first half of 2007.

The figures are in stark contrast to Sawbridgeworth and, in particular, Roydon. In Sawbridgeworth, 33 crimes were recorded in the two-and-a-half years and in Roydon just 14, with only one unfortunate cyclist losing his bike during the period.

Cops probe carp poaching claims

By CHRIS MOSS

mossc@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE eastern European community in Harlow has been warned off poaching carp from a council pond.

Essex Police is investigating claims of immigrant anglers failing to throw the protected fish back at Harlow Common and instead taking them home for dinner.

Angler Paul Williamson, of Potter Street, said he witnessed a man with an eastern European accent catch a large carp, stab it and carry it off. He has also found remnants of riverside barbecues where the fish was eaten.

"As this is a council-owned pond, there isn't a bailiff to supervise the fishing and there are no signs up making it clear that carp must be thrown back if caught," he said.

"I understand it's a delicacy in their home countries, but they need to be stopped from doing this before all the carp are gone."

Stort Valley Angling Society secretary Bob Groom said three eastern Europeans were cautioned last year for poaching carp at Netteswell Pond.

"It's becoming a countrywide problem," he said. "I'm aware there is no bailiff at Harlow Common, which makes it very difficult to police the fishing, but I think more needs to be done to prevent poaching - a sign at the Harlow Common pond would be a good start."

Although carp is rarely eaten in Britain, Poles and Czechs regard it as a traditional Christmas dish.

Marcin Frankowski, owner of the Kubus Polish delicatessen in Little Walk, Harlow, said many eastern Europeans were unaware carp must be thrown back.

"In our culture, fishing is not just done as a sport or for relaxation," he said. "When people fish in eastern European countries, they do it not only for enjoyment but also for food."

"I think people need to be given more information about the fishing laws."

Essex Police crime reduction officer Tony Ellis warned: "We need to get the message across to those people from cultures in which carp is considered a delicacy that if they take fish from a lake, river or pond then they can be convicted of theft."

A council spokesman said increased patrols and new signs were being considered.

Fit for biking and pom-poms

YOUNG people keeping fit as part of Harlow Council's summer programme to get children and young people active took part in mountain biking and cheerleading this week.

Cycle kings put their mountain biking skills to the test at Harlow's Outdoor Centre on Monday, while glamorous girls tested their athletic and gymnastic abilities with cheerleading at Stewards School on Tuesday.

The Get Active summer activities programme has included various activities during the summer including canoeing, climbing, abseiling, canal boat trips, ice-skating, and traditional sports such as tennis, badminton and judo.

Bob Davis, vice-chair of the council's environment and community committee, said: "We have been able to offer a varied programme of activities so there has been something for everyone."

"The programme has included sessions for young people with disabilities, such as indoor sports for young people with co-ordination difficulties as well as wheelchair multi-sports sessions."

"Hopefully, those enjoying the sessions will go on to take part in sport on a regular basis or join clubs."

Fresh focus on dementia

A NEW strategy to help dementia sufferers and their carers has been welcomed.

The government scheme will focus on improving early awareness, diagnosis and treatment.

Jenny Owen, Essex County Council's executive director of health, has been appointed co-chair of the National Dementia Strategy and said the move was important when more people than ever before are expected to live above the age of 85.

"The consultation on this proposed strategy will help us understand what may lie ahead and how best we can react," she said.

Jail for man who kept drugs for dealer

A STOCKHOLDER of illegal drugs has been jailed for 18 months after police found cocaine and amphetamines in his Harlow home.

Patrick Norris (50), of Longfield, Harlow, pleaded guilty to charges of possessing cocaine and being concerned in the supply of cocaine and amphetamines when he appeared before Chelmsford Crown Court on Thursday.

The court heard how Norris stored illegal substances on behalf of his dealer and, in return, would get drugs for his own use at cost price.

Yvonne Ferns, prosecuting, said police discovered 14.5g of cocaine and 514g of amphetamines when they went to his home on March 28.

Although Norris told the officers he was looking after the drugs on a dealer's behalf, he refused to identify the man.

Stephen Dyble, in mitigation, said Norris suffered from multiple sclerosis and the drugs had helped ease his condition.

"He found the amphetamines and cocaine helped as the stimulant he needed when he suffered a relapse," he said.

But as he jailed Norris, Judge Anthony Goldstaub told him: "Your behaviour made it easier for bigger fish to swim in this nasty pond."

Bus drives home truancy message

By BEN WILKINSON
Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A SUMMER roadshow taking place throughout the holidays aims to ensure that youngsters in Harlow will think twice before playing truant once the schools reopen.

The initiative, called Attend To Achieve, is run by the Harlow Education Consortium and funded by the Government's Behaviour Improvement Programme.

Tagging along with the Rainbow Services Young Bus as it tours the town to offer play facilities, the attendance show invites youngsters and parents to share their views on truancy and asks those who do bunk off school to explain why they do so.

As well as children, parents are quizzed as to their views on school attendance issues and are given information about how a child missing just a few days can set them back significantly in a subject.

The campaign also includes a competition to design a poster encouraging school attendance. The winner's work will be displayed on Arriva buses in the area.

Project co-ordinator Roseline Rolle said children had been honest about their reasons for skipping school and this would help the HEC to encourage attendance in future.

"Often the reason given is bullying and that indicates that we could perhaps do more to explain to children what they can do if they feel they are being bullied," she said.

"Another issue, in some cases, is the parents and a key message we are trying to get across to mums and dads is that allowing your children to miss school, whether it's for holidays or any other reason, is very inadvisable."

The roadshow was in West Gate, in The High, last week and today (Thursday) it visits Staple Tye. Next Thursday, it will be at Broadley Road, in Summers, and on August 30 in the Town Park, next to Harlow Pool.

PAH is hosting police surgery for its patients

HOSPITAL bosses hope to reassure patients in Harlow by introducing a police surgery alongside more routine appointments.

Manned by police community support officers from the Essex force, the drop-in service in the outpatients department at Princess Alexandra Hospital will offer advice, guidance and support.

The new surgery will be open at the hospital from noon-2pm every Friday from September 17 and will be staffed initially by PCSOs Dean Coates and Elaine Mager.

The innovation comes just two weeks after the Star revealed that almost one crime a day takes place at PAH.

Statistics obtained under the Freedom of Information Act showed that in the 12-month period to March, 349 incidents of crime and disorder were recorded.

PAH security management advisor Lynn Court said: "The new surgery is part of our growing relationship with the local police and aims to heighten the police presence in the hospital and build on links that have been forged over the last year.

"The PCSOs will be happy to answer any queries or questions people might have or listen to people who may have concerns around security in the hospital – or at home. The new surgery will be going live early next month and we hope our users and staff will take advantage of it."

● BUNGEE jumping and live wrestling are among the attractions taking place on Sunday to raise money for Princess Alexandra Hospital.

The day of fundraising fun takes place at the Shark public house, in Hobtoe Road, from 2pm.

A DAY of fun in the sun helped Harlow council to promote positive parenting in the town.

The council's Respect Team organised the family fun day in the Town Park to encourage parents to identify problems and address them early.

The event combined a variety of activities for children and young people with a number of information and advice stands for the adults. Activities on offer included badge-making, arts and crafts, games and bouncy castles.

Organisations including Sure Start, Education and Youth Services and the National Childminders Association were on hand to give guidance to parents and carers to help them find out more about good parenting and how to help their children avoid becoming involved in anti-social behaviour.

A LATE night brawl involving three Harlow brothers in the town centre resulted in one of them being knocked unconscious, a court heard.

Clarry Pidgeon (31), of Rushes Mead, and Ben Pidgeon (27), of Broadfield, both admitted common assault on their brother Alan (29), of Willowfield, at Chelmsford Crown Court on Thursday. The pair denied affray in pleas accepted by the prosecution.

After Judge Christopher Ball watched a security camera video of the incident, which occurred in Terminus Street on March 21, he jailed Clarry Pidgeon for three months and gave Ben Pidgeon a three-month jail sentence, suspended for one year.

Alan Pidgeon is already in jail, having been sentenced to 18 months imprisonment for affray at an earlier hearing.

Richard Burrington, prosecuting, told the court that Clarry and Alan Pidgeon had been engaged in conversation when, for some unknown reason, Clarry head-butted and kicked his brother.

Alan fought back, punching Clarry to the ground and kicking him in the head. Then, while Clarry lay unconscious on the floor, Alan dropped to his knees and punched him in the head about 10 times.

Ben Pidgeon, who was on the other side of the road, saw what was going on and ran over. In defence of Clarry, he kicked Alan.

Then Alan and Ben squared up to each other and began fighting, before police officers intervened.

Richard Kelly, in mitigation for Clarry Pidgeon, said his client had sustained serious injuries and recalled very little about the incident. Referring to the initial head-butt, he added: "It must have been something said by Alan for him to snap in the way he did."

Rex Bryan, in mitigation for Ben Pidgeon, said his client had seen the fight between his brothers "and thought Clarry was going to be killed".

He ran back in the heat of the moment and kicked Alan, acting initially in defence of his other brother.

A MOTORCYCLIST was left with serious leg injuries after being in collision with a car in Harlow's Katherine's Way.

The accident occurred at about 1.50pm and the 26-year-old male rider, who was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital, sustained a suspected broken thigh bone. The female motorist was uninjured.

Sports centre builder named

A NEW sports centre and swimming pool for Harlow has come a step closer with the appointment of a contractor to build the complex.

The development – which will replace Harlow Pool, in First Avenue, and Harlow Sportcentre, in Hammarskjold Road – will be sited off Velizy Avenue, adjacent to Harlow College.

Boasting a 25m pool, sports hall, tennis and badminton courts, a gym, nursery, learning centre and members' bar, the new facility will be built by construction firm Leadbitter at a cost of £25m.

The existing Harlow

Sportcentre – which was the first community leisure centre in the UK when it opened in 1960 – will remain open until its replacement is completed.

The building will then be demolished to make way for further phases of new homes as part of the Harlow Gateway Project.

New lifts for station

PASSENGER accessibility is to be improved at Harlow Town Station with the installation of new lifts to replace the existing ones which are old and temperamental.

The work will begin on August 28 and should be completed by mid-December.

During the refurbishment, those passengers who are confined to wheelchairs will be able to contact station operator One's customer service centre on 0845 600 7245 to make alternative arrangements at no extra cost.

Peter Ramsey, business director for One's West Anglia operations, said: "We are committed to improving access to our stations and the replacement of the Harlow Town lifts is a key part of this initiative. The new lifts will provide our passengers with a significantly improved level of service."

Sponsorship bid of a lifeline bus

ON THE MOVE: The bus pictured with some of its regular users (S)

A LIFELINE bus service which provides the only means of transport for many elderly and disabled people in Epping Forest will cease at the end of the month unless a new sponsor can be found.

Shop And Go, which has been run by Epping Forest Community Transport for the past three years, enables isolated residents in Epping and the surrounding villages to make essential shopping trips, attend GP appointments and get to the Post Office.

Four trips are run a week – two on Monday and two on Friday – but a funding crisis and a lack of passengers has put the service under threat.

Although many people still rely on the bus, a fall in passenger numbers has seen the cost soar to about £11 per passenger and Essex County Council, Epping Town Council plus a number of parish councils which have jointly funded the scheme so far say they can no longer commit to covering its costs after August.

Voluntary Action Epping Forest chief officer Jacqui Foile said an urgent campaign was now underway to increase use of the bus and find new sponsors to keep it running.

“We’re fighting a battle on two fronts,” she said. “We need to spread the message about the service and get more passengers to take advantage of it, but we also need to find a business or businesses to contribute to secure the service.”

“Many people don’t realise that the bus is there for everyone with transport difficulties – not just elderly people. A disabled person, or a young mother and children, for example, would be more than welcome.”

“If we can get more people on the bus, that pushes down the cost per passenger and makes the service more viable.”

“From a sponsorship point of view, £10,000 would keep us going for the next 18 months and that wouldn’t all have to come from the same business. In return, we can offer advertising on the vehicle and other publicity.”

For more information about using the service or sponsoring it, call Jacqui Foile on (01992) 564178.

Councils go head-to-head

SPORTING Epping Town councillors bid au revoir to a treasured trophy on Saturday when a district council team snatched victory in the annual Inter-Council Petanque Challenge.

Epping Forest councillors Anne Haigh and Dave Stallan put aside their political differences and stormed to a 13-9 win against town councillors Ben Murphy and Maxine Starling on a glorious summer’s afternoon at Stonards Hill Recreation Ground.

Arthur Tallon, secretary of the Epping Horizons Petanque Club, said: “It was a keenly contested match as it always is but the district council just shaded it in the end. We were very pleased with the amount of supporters that turned out to watch and the weather certainly smiled on us!”

Candle of Hope event

FAMILIES who have lost a loved one to cancer can remember them in a touching candlelit ritual which also aims to raise funds for charity.

The Candle of Hope ceremony takes place as part of this weekend’s Cancer Research UK Relay For Life event at The Leventhorpe School, in Sawbridgeworth.

About 150 people are expected to take part in the 24-hour relay race, but everyone is invited to join the ceremony in which special sacks decorated with tributes will be filled with sand and lit with candles around the track.

Organiser Lorraine Gunn said: “The Candle of Hope Ceremony will be a poignant reminder of why everyone has come to Relay For Life. I will be lighting my own candle in memory of loved ones and friends to remember and celebrate their lives.”

To join in or find out more, call (01279) 657719.

A party at the market

MARKET Square in Harlow will come alive on Sunday in aid of the Princess Alexandra Hospital’s accident and emergency unit.

Town centre businesses are joining with the PAH NHS Trust to hold a party marking the 60th anniversary of the new town, with the fun starting at 11am and continuing into the afternoon.

There will be music from local bands, live dancing, fun and games, competitions, food and drink. Hair and beauty treatments will be on offer from DG and Co, disc jockeys from radio station Ten-17 will attend and there may be a surprise celebrity appearance.

● FUN and games also take place in Harlow’s Berecroft estate on Sunday when the residents’ association holds its annual community day from 1-4pm, with wrestling, a bouncy castle, face-painting, street-dancing, a boot sale and a beer tent.

Historic outside dining

A PICNIC with a difference takes place at The Museum of Harlow, in Muskhams Road, on Saturday as Church Langley Women’s Institute marks the new town’s 60th anniversary.

The group is hosting a display showing how picnics have changed in the past six decades, with food and other items from earlier eras on display. Harlow brass band will be providing music and there will be a chance to play croquet. The fun starts at 1pm.

Popular grant scheme

A GRANTS scheme run by a local building society has been overwhelmed with applications from charities.

The Saffron, which has a branch in Sawbridgeworth, has received about 80 applications for a £10,000 grant and will announce the successful applicants in coming weeks.

Chief executive Andy Golding said that although the deadline had passed, the society would be giving out other grants later in the year.

“It seems the message has been getting through to charities. We have received more applications than ever before and they are of a very high standard,” he added.

Air ambulance bikers

BENEVOLENT bikers can help the Essex Air Ambulance by signing up for its 2007 motorcycle run on September 16.

CHILDREN are getting fatter as a direct result of a bad diet and a lack of exercise.

So why is Harlow Council taking it upon itself, in an apparent fit of nanny state pique, to prevent their enjoyment of a healthy activity?

The story of the three boys told to leave Harlow Pool unless they changed their long shorts for - what some people regard as embarrassing and dated - swimming trunks, exemplifies the foolishness of pointless bureaucracy.

The council has safety fears that long shorts may be dangerous for less-strong swimmers, believing the drag created by looser shorts can be perilous.

It makes you wonder how much the taxpayer spent for some civil servant to come up with such nonsense.

Let's face it - obesity and bad lifestyles are far more damaging and fatal than wearing the wrong type of swimming costume.

It's time to look at the bigger picture and use at least a modicum of common sense and compromise.

Changes were badly handled at our college

SIR, The Learning and Skills Council report into the affairs of Harlow College is a remarkable document. However, I doubt very much it will be added to the CV of college principal Colin Hindmarch when he seeks his next employment.

I am no expert in the matters of higher education but I have had plenty of experience reading official reports. This one is remarkable because for Civil Service authors, the language is pretty robust.

It quotes the idealistic vision of the Teaching and Learning Strategy created by the principal which calls for radical change, albeit based on pretty flimsy evidence. The LSC does not criticise this aspect. Instead, it then proceeds to illustrate, in my opinion, that this college principal has zero competence in the essential skills required for the mechanics of change management. This view is supported by the total lack of any forward planning, studies, consultations, risk assessments, etc. Not a shred of evidence exists from any source to suggest that this project was undertaken in anything like a professional and responsible manner. Indeed, the reverse is abundantly apparent.

The LSC report covers the responsibilities of the corporate governing body of the college, chaired by Martin Coleman, and those of the principal himself.

Corporate responsibility seems to have become subsumed in the comatose state of the college governors. The principal would probably claim absolute observance of this, although, given recent events, with some difficulty.

All of this comment, however, is of little comfort to students and their parents contemplating educational prospects at Harlow College. The principal, due entirely to his own obduracy, cannot give any guarantee of educational stability. The corporate governors have accepted the non-negotiable requirements of the LSC.

There cannot be any confidence the principal, with his dictatorial attitude and absence of humility, will comply within the given timescales to those requirements. Strong decisive action is required. The staffing issue must be resolved at ACAS as a high priority. That is not possible with the continued presence of Mr Hindmarch. The corporate body have to accept that if the college is to retain any reputation at all, it will have to be without the services of either Colin Hindmarch or current chairman Martin Coleman.

Time for resignations

SIR, Well done to Bill Rammell and the all those people who have sought to restore some sanity at Harlow College, in particular those involved in the Save Our College campaign. Thanks to their efforts, we now have some limited but significant progress towards resolving this damaging dispute.

The LSC have now published their report on Harlow College - the outcome being that the college is effectively in special measures, the Governors having agreed to fairly uncompromising LSC proposals that:

- the college be referred to the Quality Improvement Agency;
- they sign up to the Essex Peer review scheme;
- that the LSC has two governors on the governing body, one of whom is likely to be an experienced trade union official;
- that ACAS are involved in helping to resolve the dispute with the UCU.

At long last, there has been some recognition that the introduction of the Teaching and Learning Strategy and the subsequent industrial dispute has been handled disastrously by the governors and the principal, their incompetence having led to a situation where approaching a hundred staff have left and the reputation of the college is now under severe threat.

We still wait to hear what this disastrous policy has cost - reliable estimates suggest in excess of £1.5m.

Of particular note was the finding by the LSC that there was little (some would say no) evidence of involvement of stakeholders in any discussion. So much for the principal's assertion of these changes being backed by students, parents and the wider community.

The tragedy is that all of this damage could have been avoided. All that was required was some competence in the management of change and industrial relations. Perhaps Colin Hindmarch, the principal, will now do the decent thing and resign. Equally, the chair of governors Martin Coleman will hopefully join him, given that this is his second major error of judgement, the first being the appointment of a previous principal who reportedly left the college in 1995 with a deficit of £2m, a matter that reached a House of Commons select committee.

Given the history of this dispute and the failure of the governors and the principal to actively and effectively engage with either the UCU, stakeholders or the community, we can have no confidence in their ability to take matters forward, even with the assistance of the LSC. Harlow College requires and deserves a new start.

50 Club fate unclear

SIR, In the furore which has surrounded the affairs of Harlow College over recent months, the possible effects on a group of stakeholders have gone largely unreported.

For more than 20 years, the college has supported a group of students, mainly elderly, in a varied programme of educational and other classes of wide general interest. Known as the 50 Club (the name, however, is misleading in that no fixed age limits have ever been specified or enforced), this programme attracts a widely representative group of participants, fiercely loyal to the club, it's fellow students, it's tutors and activities.

This loyalty results in large part from the sense of friendship and interdependence which the club engenders and which extends far beyond mere attendance at its classes. Members feel a sense of responsibility towards their fellow students, especially the elderly, those living alone and other similarly vulnerable. The existence of the club can, and frequently does, constitute a vital means of social contact, with beneficial effects on demands on the healthcare and social services which may be imagined.

The core of the club's activities is essentially centred upon the college programme of classes, which is now rumoured to be under threat of major cutback or even of closure. The reasons for this remain unclear to members; no definitive statement on the club's future appears to have been made. Whatever the truth, no club programme appears in the current college prospectus and the registry is accepting no registrations from would-be students for the new academic year.

The college has an enviable history of hosting programmes of study and activities for students, including the elderly and those with special needs, beyond the normal range of purely academic and vocational topics. It would be an enormous loss should any of them find themselves collateral casualties.

In reading the extensive press reportage of these, I was struck by a (different) contribution on education in the Blair era from the director of the Harlow Education Consortium, which ended "... over 10 years, we have seen more joined-up thinking, a shift in culture towards partnership working and lifelong learning. This is vital for Harlow as the basis of community wellbeing, regeneration and the future of the town itself."

One must hope that promises of support and encouragement of lifelong learning made by successive governments over the years do not prove to be hollow.

Airport's a rip-off

SIR, I felt I needed to write in to let people know about the new parking charges at Stansted Airport.

Up until very recently, when you were picking anyone up from the airport you were given 15 minutes free of charge and therefore kept the people on the move and the traffic flowing; well that's all changed – no free parking.

Last week when I went to the airport to pick up my partner and daughter, I drove into the car park as usual (I admit I didn't see or read any notices regarding payment/charges), took my ticket, picked them up and drove straight to the barrier to get out, only to be told (by the machine) I owed £1. Thinking this was wrong, I pressed the buzzer and the gentleman informed me you now have to pay for the first 15 minutes (I've no idea how much if you were there a while!).

I was furious and still am; I, like others before me, had to reverse up to get out and pay.

The airport authority obviously saw they were missing out on making more money from their passengers and stopped the free 15 minutes pick-up point. Safety and security is out the window as people will now just walk to the edge of the car park and be picked up there.

Why pay more? I don't mind paying in car parks when I go out but, as I am not actually parking and leaving my car, I feel this time I am being ripped off by the airport and when they start complaining about people sitting on the grass verges waiting to be picked up, they have only themselves to blame.

Lanes narrowed

SIR, I live in Sawbridgeworth and travel on the A414 through Harlow each day to get to work.

The road between Mark Hall School and Church Langley has recently been resurfaced and for the past couple of days I have noticed that the road markings have changed.

From the direction of Sawbridgeworth up to Church Langley there have always been two lanes; these lanes have been narrowed for some reason.

I had wondered why this was and why the single carriageway heading the other way was so wide, seeing as articulated lorries regularly use this stretch of road.

This morning I saw a relatively small lorry being passed by a four-wheel drive car in the direction leading to Church Langley. This would be a normal event but the car had to break sharply because it was far too close to the lorry, nearly causing an accident.

Please can someone tell me whether the road markings have been set out incorrectly or whether there is some kind of explanation for this?

If a larger lorry was travelling in this direction, no other vehicle would be able to pass it.

Who will be held responsible if there is an accident here caused by the layout of this road?

Rights in China

SIR, This week we reach the one-year-to go point in the run-up to the 2008 Olympics in China – a key moment to assess what to expect from the hosts next year.

Just as we're hoping for a great games in Britain in 2012, the Chinese are excitedly preparing breathtakingly big stadiums and facilities for 2008. But at what cost?

At Amnesty International, we've been alarmed to discover that the Chinese authorities have been imprisoning people as part of 'clean up' operations ahead of the competition.

One man is serving four years merely for trying to protest about his house being demolished to make way for the games. We've had reports he's even being tortured in prison.

Pool sculpture loss sadly unavoidable

SIR, The fate of the Two Children On A Rock sculpture, as described in the Star (August 2, 2007), was sadly unavoidable.

The sculpture was made of copper polyester and was very fragile. It had been damaged and restored several times over the years, but in its last state was quite irreparable; it was in several pieces, with one figure fully removed and a head and a limb missing.

The rock section had also been vandalised and was in a dangerous condition.

The sculptor, Hilary Frew, inspected it and decided that it could not be restored again. The council then removed it.

Friends of Harlow Sculpture, the voluntary body which monitors the state of Harlow's sculptures, has been very shocked and upset at the loss of one of the town's pieces. It was a familiar and loved landmark for generations of children using the paddling pool.

These acts of vandalism only make the Friends more determined to protect the rest of the collection. Grants had been sought in the past to have the Two Children On A Rock cast in a more durable material but had not been forthcoming and that is one of the reasons for forming the FOHS, who are and will be working in the future to secure funding for the care and repair of other sculptures in the town to prevent this sort of thing happening again.

Visitors to the very successful Outside Inside exhibition, currently showing at the Gibberd Gallery in the Civic Centre, are asked to think about joining the Friends. Apart from our core activities of informing the public about the collection, giving guided tours and talks to schools and others, we have lectures by visiting artists and visits to exhibitions, etc.

Harlow is unique among New Towns for its remarkable sculpture collection. Many works are in vulnerable positions and have suffered from vandalism. We have a watching brief regarding this heritage.

Jenny Lushington

Press Secretary

The Friends of Harlow Sculpture

Attitude worse than vandalism

SIR, I can't believe that Harlow Council allowed the Hilary Frew sculpture Two Children On A Rock to be dumped in a skip and removed because they couldn't afford to repair it.

This sculpture has been the centrepiece of the paddling pool in the town park since 1965, climbed on by every child who ever paddled there, but to the council it represents nothing but an expenditure which they say they can't afford.

When Henry Moore's Family Group lost a head, the council paid £150,000 to have it replaced. They can afford nearly £300,000 for a skate park and I'm afraid to have to mention the £80,000 forked out to replace the Dove of Peace as our logo with three wavy lines.

Harlow possesses the most magnificent collection of public sculptures, including Two Children On A Rock, a collection which is second to none in urban planning – but it would appear that the council feels it not good value for money.

To my mind, this is an attitude even worse than the original vandalism and is utterly shameful.

Right now, China would win no medals for human rights.

Bank's not green

SIR, A couple of years or so ago, I wrote to my bank complaining that they were costing money because the software they were using only recognised a month as having 28 days and consequently every four weeks I received a bank statement.

However, when the name of the month changes, the computer then churns out another statement for the two or three days at the end of the month. In answer to my letter, I was told that it was too costly to reprogramme the computer so that I only got 12 statements a year instead of 23.

My latest two statements, one dated July 28 and the other for July 31, the latter one for only four transactions, has the following printed notification: "As part of our commitment to the environment and to cut identity fraud, we are reducing the number of statements we send."

It then goes on to state that certain accounts with less credit than £500 a month will only get quarterly statements and where the account has no transactions for the last six months, only "one paper statement a year".

One would have thought that there would have been a greater "commitment to the environment" if for 11 months of the year I only received one statement.

IT was an autumn evening at a pub in 1968 when the fine arts scene in Harlow took on a new form and found itself a bold and insightful leading light.

It would also be the moment when one the town's most famous and architecturally impressive landmarks would be saved from the wrecking ball.

On that occasion, Harlow College ceramics tutor Sally Anderson was having a drink with electrical engineer and fellow lecturer Jim Delarney.

She had left London to come to live in Harlow in 1960 and, after an unsuccessful tour of Britain to raise awareness of community arts patronage with her then-husband Harry, she decided to make practical pieces.

"After two years of touring, the exhibition had only sold one piece; I decided to make things which could be used," she said.

"Hand-made pottery was very fashionable in the 1960s, so it was gratifying that for a change my work was in demand.

"I made wheel-thrown mugs, teapots and all kinds of domestic ware. Soon I did not have time for teaching and became a full-time potter, earning a living through the craft – I was very proud of this."

Jim had been helping Sally to find a workshop because she had by now filled her council-owned home to bursting with kilns and pottery firing equipment.

"We always joked that ours was the only house on the street with no snow on the roof!" said Sally.

"He said to me 'I've found you a studio Sally'. He then told me it was a little bigger than I would have ideally wanted but that the Harlow Development Corporation wanted artists to use it; he told me I had an appointment at 10.30am the next morning.

"I had, of course, heard of Parndon Mill and you could see it across the meadow, but I never got near it because when I was younger you could only get to the bridge where the miller had a rather vicious dog lurking about!

"I saw it and I went 'wow!', as anyone would."

At that time, Parndon Mill, situated off Elizabeth Way on the Stort Navigation, had been sitting vacant for two years and was in a fairly dilapidated state when Sally went for her first viewing.

"Ugly security fencing had not prevented vandalism and most of the windows were broken," she said. "The handsome three-storey house was blotched where creeper had been removed and looked damp and unloved.

"The mill building had weeds growing in the gutters and trees sprouting out of the crevices. However, stepping onto the pretty Victorian tiled floor inside the front door of the house I felt warmth and a sense that this had been a happy house.

"Each window had a different view of the river, over the millrace and up the navigation. The mill itself looked derelict, with large holes in the floors where the machinery had been removed – some pieces still remained, disused, rusty and heavy.

"Each floor looked vast in this huge building and its potential seemed limitless."

The mill was featured in the Domesday Book in the 11th century and recorded as having three hives and a goat.

By
JIM TANFIELD

The current building was completed in 1900 after a fire destroyed the previous mill.

A newspaper article from the West Essex Gazette in 1897 reads, in a style typical of the day: "On Thursday night two of the employ'ees (Messrs Loveday and Brown) were at work until twelve o'clock, as usual, and when they left the premises everything was apparently all right.

"The flames were first seen between one and two o'clock on Friday morning, among the first to notice the fire being the signalman at Burnt Mill Station (Brace). Mrs R.E. Smith also heard the noise. It was at once apparent that the mill was on fire, and no time was lost in summoning assistance ... The distance the engines had to come necessarily made matters still more serious, but in the meantime very valuable help was given by several employ'ees from Messrs Kircaldy's factory and many others.

"The house, which was very close to the mill – in fact only a very few feet off – was in great danger, the burning building rather higher, and there being a danger of the lighted wood and other material falling upon it. Attention was, therefore, directed to the house, which was promptly cleared of furniture, and it is satisfactory to state that this was damaged but little in the hurried removal."

When Sally secured the lease she went about finding artists to use the space for studios.

"We had no money whatsoever but we managed to secure favours.

"The scouts were storing things like tents in the upstairs so the scout leader, who owned a JCB, moved all of the undergrowth and brambles from the back in return.

"It was also shocking timing because the London Development Corporation was offering artists massive studios in the old Docklands and we couldn't compete with that."

But, slowly, interest in the secluded mill gained momentum. Sally was joined by Roger Lee and the pair of them started running a business in hand-decorated ceramic tiles which eventually adorned palaces, swimming pools, luxury liners and glamorous hotels throughout the world.

The pair closed the business in 2004 to go into "a form of retirement" to concentrate on the gallery and the studios.

"We thought it would be an easy job but it is an awful lot of work and we are here all the time anyway!" said Roger.

Now the gallery is thriving, with studios let to three sculptors, 14 craftsmen, four painters and printmakers, four design firms and three architects and building designers. Sculptures now adorn the beautiful surroundings and millrace, and the constant sound of running water adds a rural and bohemian charm.

The future is as interesting as the mill's past, with plans to refurbish the mill itself and create an educational resource centre for hydro-electric power studies in conjunction with British Waterways.

British Waterways also supported the gallery's recent exhibition called Waterworks.

From humble beginnings, Sally and Roger have created an oasis of artistic creativity in and for Harlow.

Sally concluded: "As if by accident, we have created something like this for the community and created a community at the same time."

WELCOME TO SCHOOLBAG

This week, the countdown to fun took place at ST JOHN'S; at HENRY MOORE PRIMARY a special landmark anniversary was marked; music was in the air at BURNT MILL; and the track and field were in use at PURFORD GREEN JUNIOR.

Reeling in the town's years

HENRY MOORE PRIMARY: The birth of Harlow was celebrated by children from the Kiln Lane school.

Each of the year groups was given one of the six decades since the town was built in 1947 to explore and come up with an appropriate performance.

Children sang, danced and dressed appropriate to the decade they were given, putting on a show for parents on the last day of the project.

A spokeswoman for the school said: "Not only was it really good fun but it helped the children understand the history of the town and of the country in general."

Sports day proves exhilarating fun

PURFORD GREEN JUNIOR: Pupils ran, threw and jumped their way to sporting success at the annual sports day.

Seven activities were held including slalom running, basketball, an obstacle course, penalty shoot-out and hockey dribbling. Parents went along and cheered on their children from the sidelines.

A spokeswoman said: "It was a really exhilarating day and everyone – parents, children and staff – had a brilliant time."

How to diva right in at the deep end

BURNT MILL: New musical heights were scaled when a special guest visited the First Avenue school.

Opera singer Sally Harrison took aside some of the more promising vocalists from the specialist performing arts college's year groups.

Songs practised included Andrew Lloyd Webber's Music Of The Night from The Phantom Of The Opera.

Assistant headteacher Paul Williams said: "She was amazing and the end result was really exciting."

Space rocket event is a blast!

ST JOHN'S: Outer space was explored at the Epping school when a team of space rocket experts visited.

The Starchaser Team from Manchester went along to impress the school's feeder primary pupils from EPPING JUNIOR, IVY

CHIMNEYS PRIMARY and COOPERSALE AND THEYDON GARNON PRIMARY.

Rockets and aerospace engineering were discussed, there was a hands-on session called It Came From Outer Space and pupils had the chance to make their own compressed air rockets on the playing fields.

Magda Brewin, director of engineering for the school, said: "Having the team here was great and it started off celebrations of us becoming an engineering college."

Wheelchair event is fun and useful

A WHEELIE good time was had by all when young disabled people in Harlow were taught a range of fun and useful wheelchair skills.

Organised by West Essex Primary Care Trust's paediatric team, which covers Harlow and Epping, the course at Mark Hall Sports Centre also provided children with the opportunity to meet other young wheelchair-users and participate in fun and games.

Jill Deighton, an occupational therapist involved in running the course, said: "This is the third year running we've held the skills course, and once again it proved to be a fantastic week.

"The brothers and sisters of those children in wheelchairs also came down and joined in; getting a chance to see what life is like for their siblings, and we even had a visit from wheelchair basketball team the Essex Outlaws, who really made an impression on the kids and showed them what they could be doing in a few years time."

Regeneration plan laid out

RESIDENTS in an area of Harlow set to benefit from a share of £10m in Government regeneration funding have had the chance to quiz the man spearheading the redevelopment.

Andrew Bramidge, the chief executive of development corporation Harlow Renaissance, fielded questions at an informal talk on the area's future, hosted by Great Parndon Residents' Association on Thursday.

He spoke broadly of his organisation's plans for Harlow as a whole – identifying six key regeneration aims – before elaborating on proposals for Staple Tye and addressing residents' concerns.

Plans for the area, due to be completed by 2009, include the relocation of the library to premises in the shopping centre currently occupied by the neighbourhood office, and the construction of a new health centre to replace Lister House – which is earmarked for demolition to make way for new housing.

Renaissance also proposes moving the tennis courts and expanding facilities available at the Great Parndon Community Association, while tentative steps have been taken towards easing traffic congestion with possible plans for a new road junction at Abercrombie Way and Southern Way.

"Redevelopment has been talked about for some time and what we are here to do is actually start to deliver it and I hope we will see that process begin over the next few months," said Mr Bramidge.

"We want to create new housing and provide new and improved community facilities for the people in this area of the town."

When asked by one resident exactly what proportion of new housing would benefit those on the council's ever-increasing waiting list, Mr Bramidge replied: "In line with council policy, a minimum of 30 per cent of the new development will be social housing, although we hope to provide more."

Addressing concerns about the new health centre, Mr Bramidge handed over to Harlow Health Centres Trust business manager Carol Sizeland, who reassured residents the new centre would be larger and better equipped than Lister House and could include space from which health charities can operate.

Mr Bramidge then went on to hint at the possibility of expanding leisure and recreational facilities in Staple Tye, suggesting a percentage of Government funding and monies received from developers could be used.

HARLOW MP Bill Rammell has been given the go-ahead to convert the garage at his Orchard Croft home into a habitable room.

Members of Harlow Council's planning committee approved the work to the grade II listed building at a recent meeting.

Dog's fishing hook torment

By CHRIS MOSS
moss@hertsexnews.co.uk

AN angry dog-owner has warned anglers to be more careful with their baited rods after his Jack Russell almost died when it swallowed a barbed hook left on a riverbank.

The unidentified angler had left a rod baited with luncheon meat on the banks of the River Stort while fishing at Parndon Lock when Pete Eley walked past with his dog Alfie.

Mr Eley (51), who lives on a narrowboat moored at the same lock, was horrified when his pet went for the bait and swallowed the hook.

He rushed the dog to veterinary practice Kew's, in Wych Elm, where vets battled to save it – ultimately managing to extract the hook and lead weight only after a major stomach operation.

"Dogs will be dogs and when he saw the meat just sitting there on the riverbank he obviously liked the look of it and just went for it," Mr Eley told the Star.

"I'm an angler myself and I'd never leave a baited rod on the bank

A NARROW ESCAPE: Pete Eley with Alfie

like that. It was so careless of the fisherman – Alfie wouldn't be here if it wasn't for the vets."

Mr Eley said he later heard reports of another similar incident nearby in which a dog died.

"This shows that some anglers need to be far more careful with their baited rods, although most would never dream of leaving one on the riverbank next to a footpath like that," he said. "There's no excuse as far as I'm concerned."

Mr Eley was hit with a vet's bill of £700 following the operation and complained the angler, who was aware of the dog's predicament, had not attempted to come forward to help meet the costs.

Bob Groom, secretary of Stort Valley Angling Society, owner of the lease for the stretch of river where the incident occurred, emphasised the need for anglers to be aware of the dangers posed to dogs and wildlife when baiting their rods.

"The vast majority of anglers – certainly those who are members of a club like ours – would never leave a baited rod unattended in the river, let alone on the riverbank. I'd say most anglers would agree that the man in question should have known better."

"But it's also important that dog-owners know they need to keep their pets under control when approaching someone fishing to avoid incidents like this from happening, as there are obviously potential dangers for dogs from some of the sharp implements used by anglers."

Peter and Sarah were digging themselves deeper and deeper into debt. We helped them

Staff laid off as bank pulls the plug on branch

CUSTOMERS of a high street financial firm in Harlow will soon have to do their banking elsewhere after the town's only branch closes in November this year.

Former building society Cheltenham and Gloucester – now owned by Lloyds TSB bank – announced the closure of its premises in Broad Walk last week as part of a nationwide cull of 31 branches.

Four employees will be laid off as a result, with the firm blaming the closure on a fall in personal customers as many now opt to manage their accounts online rather than visit their local branch.

Customers will have to travel to the remaining C&G branch in Bishop's Stortford to transact their business or, alternatively, use one of the three Harlow branches of Lloyds TSB from October.

However, as reported in the Star three weeks ago, the future of the Lloyds branch in West Gate is itself in doubt as it remains temporarily closed due to staff absences.

C&G managing director Jon Pain said: "Closing a branch is never a decision that we take lightly but, with an increasing number of customers taking advantage of technology, we are seeing fewer customers coming through the door in Harlow."

"We are writing to our customers who are impacted by these changes to tell them about the closure and the options that are available to them."

Weapons firm lands a £24m military deal

Future looks good for chamber

THE new executive officer of the rejuvenated Harlow & District Chamber of Commerce has spoken of her optimism for the future as the organisation goes from strength to strength.

Changes towards the end of 2006 heralded a fresh start, with 12 new members joining the Wych Elm-based local business support network since the turn of the year.

Executive officer Angela Peppiatt, pictured above, said: "It has been a busy six months and I am confident that the improvements made will see the continuing growth and success of the organisation. Membership has once again started to grow and we are delighted to welcome new members."

A LEADING UK defence systems manufacturer based in Harlow has landed a lucrative £24m contract to arm military aircraft with a new guided weapons system.

The multi-million pound deal will see Raytheon Systems support the flight trials and subsequent integration of the Paveway IV guided missile onto the short take-off and vertical landing (STOVL) version of the F-35 Lightning II aircraft.

The aircraft, which currently exists only as a prototype, will be the world's first stealth version of a STOVL plane, capable of operating routinely at supersonic speeds and to be used by the Royal Air Force and Royal Navy as a replacement for the ageing Harrier jump-jet.

The UK is one of only six European nations due to take delivery of the innovative new aircraft – also known as the Joint Strike Fighter – and Raytheon has heralded the integration of its own newly developed weapons system as a triumph of

British engineering.

Tobin Touchstone, the firm's director of precision systems, said: "This is a significant opportunity for Raytheon to further develop its aircraft integration portfolio and place its precision systems business as one of the UK's centres of excellence for this type of activity."

"Through technology reachback to the US, Raytheon – along with its Paveway IV team members – has grown significantly the UK's indigenous capability in precision guided weapons."

The firm, at The Pinnacles, in Edinburgh Way, is a prime contractor and major supplier of weapons and high-end security systems to the Ministry of Defence, designing, developing and manufacturing a wide range of high technology electronic systems.

Now the firm's focus will be on providing documentation for the integration programme and achieving flight clearance for its weaponry so that it can be installed on the aircraft.

Motor showcase for disabled

DISABLED people living in Harlow converged on a comprehensive exhibition at a local car dealership, showcasing the very latest in disabled support equipment.

Ford dealership Gates hosted the free Motability Open Day on Thursday, which included displays from leading UK mobility services and incorporated everything from cars to kitchen aids.

Gowrings Mobility featured their specially adapted Ford Connect, designed to accommodate virtually every size and shape of wheelchair on the market.

In addition, Hertfordshire firm Alphamarque took centre stage with its extensive range of scooters, chairs, footwear and kitchen aids. The Edinburgh Way dealership is Harlow's local approved Ford Motability supplier, providing vehicles for those on the UK's leading charitable car scheme for disabled people.

Group sales operations manager Simon Pitts said: "At Gates, we appreciate how important it is to offer people as much information as we can about the Motability scheme.

"But our Motability Information Day was not just about cars, so we threw open our doors to anyone with a disability, whether they were a driver or not. Hopefully, everybody found lots to interest them."

Harlow Council chairwoman Lorna Spenceley was on hand to officially open the exhibition, which was attended by more than XXX people with and without disabilities.

25 YEARS AGO

August 19, 1982

EXPERTS PROBE FISH DEATHS

WATER authority experts are probing the mystery deaths of hundreds of fish in the River Stort at Harlow.

Dr David Stott, pollution controller of Thames Water, told the Star: "We haven't got a clue; it's a real mystery." Hundreds of pounds of fish are believed to have died, including roach, chub and pike.

TROUBLE FREE MARCHING

A NATIONAL Front march through Harlow on Saturday passed off peacefully.

About 200 supporters of the right-wing group confronted 150 member of opposition groups including the Anti-Nazi League but there was no fighting.

Front organiser Martin Webster led the march - with banners reading "British jobs for British workers" - to the town centre and back to the railway station, where a rally was held.

WHITEHALL FARCE OF AREA 79

HARLOW Council will soon have to decide whether to pull down homes in Fernhill, Clarkhill and Honeyhill or spend more money improving them.

That's the grim news from council leader Tom Farr who told the Star there was absolutely no more money coming from the government for housing repairs.

FACE-LIFT FOR PLAYHOUSE BAR

Phase two of a £70,000 plan to refurbish The Playhouse has started.

The aim of the scheme, said a spokesman, was make the theatre more comfortable, attractive and convenient.

The theatre foyer was completely redecorated during phase one last summer and now it's the turn of the Gilbey Bar and concourse on the first floor.

Did you help bake a piece of town history?

SWEET MEMORIES: Two scenes from the archive footage of the Co-op biscuit factory in the 1960s

THANKS to all those who have written in with their memories of working at the Co-op biscuit factory in The Pinnacles - your letters and emails have been passed on to Anglia TV, as promised.

Producers of nostalgia programme The Way We Were have unearthed film footage of the factory in the 1960s and want to hear from people who worked there at the time.

The first to write in with her memories was Milwards resident Carol Stearn (nee Lockerby), who worked at "The Biscuit", as it was known, for many years.

"I started at 15 and worked as a packer," she said. "The Co-op was new and was using what was then the latest technology. "It attracted visitors from all over the world to see the plant in operation and I was asked to become a guide to show the visitors around."

If you worked at the factory in the '60s, you can contact the producers by writing to them via Nostalgia.

Mods, vampires and a washing machine!

OUR appeal for your cinema memories has brought a wealth of responses - including this great picture taken in 1953 by Ladyshot resident Bob Malster.

Mr Malster (81) moved to Churchfield in 1952 and The Regal, in Templefields, opened a short time afterwards.

"Although it was amongst the factories, it was actually built specifically as a cinema," he said. "Before that there was absolutely nothing to do in the town."

"I was very keen on photography at the time and took lots of pictures around Harlow. This one was taken not long after The Regal opened - and as you can see, the place was packed with children, with all the lads in short trousers!"

Sylvia Wilson, who writes from Hatfield, was the first cashier at The Regal and when it closed she moved to the new Odeon, in The High. She finally left the cinema business until 1983, as house manager at the Odeon Marble Arch.

"When The Regal opened I remember how happy everyone in Harlow was to get a cinema at last," said Mrs Wilson, then known as Mrs Wood.

"We used to do publicity stunts to advertise forthcoming films - one time I laid in Sheratons shop window dressed as a bride for the Brides Of Dracula. Later, when South Pacific came to The Odeon, myself and a friend who sold the ice cream, June Hart, were dressed as South Sea girls, with grass skirts, garlands around our necks and flowers in our hair. It was freezing, but the market stallholders enjoyed it!"

Mrs Wilson also recalled one Sunday when she had to interrupt a film in The Regal because of a fight between mods and rockers.

"They sent me one policeman to deal with it! But we cleared them out and I got a cheer from the rest of the audience and we carried on with the film."

Red Lion Crescent resident Valerie Burton remembers a very special visit to The Regal in 1956 when she was 21 and her husband Geoffrey 24.

She sent us a local paper report from the time, which reads: "As Mr Burton bought two tickets, Mr Peter Davis, the cinema manager, walked over and tapped him on the shoulder and, pointing to a sparkling new Viceroy washing machine, a Cossor radio set and a box of chocolates standing in the foyer, said 'They're yours.'

"Why? What's it all about?", asked Mr Burton, and when Mr Davis told him he was the millionth patron, all he could say was 'Oh!'"

Sadly, Nostalgia is unable to reproduce the entertaining photograph but the caption accurately describes Mrs Burton "gazing in wonderment at the Viceroy Twin washing machine".

As grateful as we are to our older correspondents, it is always good to receive more recent memories, so special thanks to Longbanks resident David Bell for his recollections of the 1980 Harlow Council rock contest final at the Odeon.

Mr Bell, who at the time worked on the Potter Street Playscheme, was told by a fellow council worker that a mystery guest band would be appearing and he offered to get him backstage.

"I didn't think any more about it until the actual night when I met him," he said. "When the last local band had played he took me backstage and, to my total surprise, the guest band were The Boomtown Rats."

"To meet Bob Geldof and the late Paula Yates was amazing - they were so down to earth. At the time, the plight in Ethiopia was just becoming common knowledge so I made a donation in one of the buckets around the place."

Has never sounded so good!

Still all shook up for The King

ALTHOUGH to his fans he'll always be the immortal King of Rock and Roll, it was 30 years ago today (Thursday) that Elvis Presley died.

Considered America's first true rock star, Elvis was one of the USA's most popular entertainers for more than two decades.

Nicknamed "The Hillbilly Cat" when he first came on the scene in the mid-1950s, Presley sang an original mix of blues with gospel influences. His considerable singing ability enabled him to take on a range of songs that few others could manage. And with his iconic quiffed hair and swaggering stage presence, it wasn't long before Elvis was a role model for a generation of young rebels.

By the 1960s, he was an icon of popular culture and his popularity continued to grow throughout the decade.

He became one of the bestselling artists in music history and broke a number of records, including those for concert attendance, record sales and television viewing figures.

But behind the scenes, the superstar was battling serious depression which caused him to abuse prescription drugs. As he got older, he also suffered a worsening obesity problem and became increasingly reclusive.

On August 16, 1977 Elvis died of a heart attack aged 42. But three decades later he remains as popular as ever, with thousands of fans each year visiting his Memphis home Graceland to pay their respects.

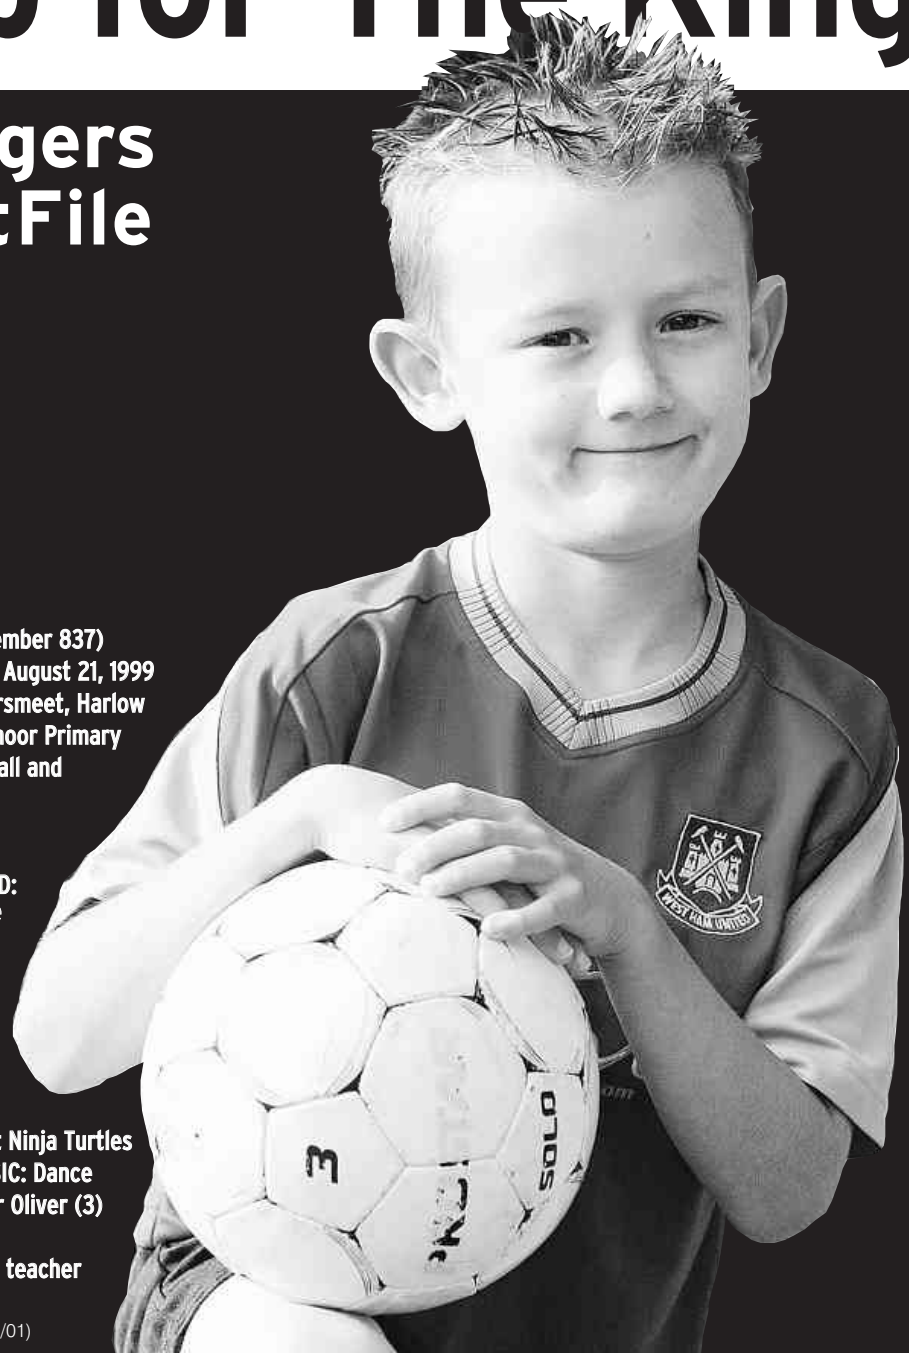

If you haven't heard any of Elvis' music, why not ask your parents or grandparents if they have any of his records?

Busy autumn is lined up at The Playhouse

AN eclectic mix of drama, dance, comedy, music and film forms The Playhouse's forthcoming autumn/winter season.

The programme, which is available from the Harlow theatre now, begins in September and boasts something for most tastes, with professional productions sitting alongside community efforts and The Playhouse's acclaimed in-house shows.

Warming up the season on August 31-September 2 with Harlow Ballet Association's A Festival of Romantic Ballet, theatregoers don't have to wait long for the highly anticipated Playhouse Theatre Company adaptation of the musical spoof gangster movie Bugsy Malone, which runs from September 14-28.

A packed October sees London Classic Theatre Company bring '70s black comedy Abigail's Party to Harlow, followed closely by break-dancing sensation Slam It 2 The Floor.

The month also boasts comedy from the Jongleurs tour and duo Canon & Ball, school performances from Burnt Mill and Church Langley Primary schools, music from The Joe Loss Orchestra and Eagles tribute Talon, as well as an audience with legendary football pundit

Jimmy Greaves.

November sees the feast of percussion which is Noise Ensemble, dance from Swansea Ballet Russe whose dancers stage The Nutcracker, and the energetic madness of Wrestlefest, now reaching its eighth instalment.

Remembrance Sunday sees a special concert and services, while the month closes with music of a different kind from 1960s favourites The Searchers.

December kicks off with Ga Ga – The Ultimate Tribute To Queen, before pantomime season gets under way – oh yes, it does! – with Dick Whittington running from December 13-January 10.

The season is also interspersed with film screenings, with the introduction for the first time of classics in addition to recent releases. The first, The Remains Of The Day, is on November 27.

Playhouse manager Philip Dale said he was proud of the new programme: "I'm delighted that this season brings the very best in professional, community and in-house productions," he said.

"This season also sees the introduction of our classic movie feature – and anyone with ideas for future classic films they would like to see on the big screen should feel free to contact me.

"With comedy, celebrities, musical concerts and tributes and the very best in touring professional theatre, I'm sure everyone in Harlow will find more than one reason to visit their local theatre over the coming months."

Magical climax to a week of work

(photo: JHYHBPB/04)

A TASTE of West End magic was in the air on Friday when youngsters performed extracts from famous musicals at Victoria Hall Theatre's summer school production.

Parents were left spellbound as they watched their children reprise roles from hit musicals including Grease, Mary Poppins and Bugsy Malone in the Bury Road theatre's Magic Of The Musicals show.

The performers aged 8-14 started the week-long course last Monday, rehearsing every day in preparation for Friday's climactic musical extravaganza.

Director Becky Oliver told the Star: "All the kids worked very hard at rehearsing for the production and began to get very excited – if a little bit nervous, too – about performing in front of their families. This was another way of raising the profile of the theatre and we really hope we can run the summer school again next year as it has proved to be such a great success."

Theatre makes a very sound investment

A SEVENTIES landmark has been brought into the digital age with the installation of new state-of-the-art technical equipment at The Playhouse in Harlow. The theatre has taken delivery of a new main house sound system, comprising 121 speakers, a top-of-the-range digital sound desk, new amplifiers and 14 cable-free radio microphones. In addition, a computer media playback system has been installed, enabling the programming of music playlists for shows. The first production to benefit from the new equipment, which promises to dramatically improve sound quality in the main auditorium, will be Playhouse Theatre Company's Bugsy Malone, from September 14.

The £58,000 investment came from Harlow Council's capital spending programme. Joint council leader Tony Durcan said: "This is the sort of equipment you would find in the West End. It will make a huge difference and we hope it will bring more people to The Playhouse. We are delighted to have made this investment and we guarantee audiences will be able to hear the difference."

FANATICAL ABOUT FILM

Bourne to be wild for one more ride

UNEASY RIDER: Matt Damon stars in THE BOURNE ULTIMATUM (s)

IN the third, purportedly final part of a series that has pushed the boundaries of the spy thriller so far that even James Bond is left grasping at its coattails, amnesiac hero Jason Bourne (Matt Damon) is back and seeking answers.

Its name is from the late Robert Ludlum's novel, but similarities to its literary origins practically end there.

Using Ludlum's concept of an amnesiac secret agent battling to recover his identity, director Paul Greengrass riffs on the theme by combining peerlessly crafted action sequences with sublime cinematic tension to spin an intricate web of white-knuckle thrills and post-9/11 paranoia.

But this is certainly not a case of style over substance, as a thrilling plot elaborating on the reality of America's mounting anxieties

certificate 12A, running time 1h55m testifies.

The action begins with London journalist Simon Ross (Paddy Considine) stumbling across a top secret CIA black ops project codenamed Blackbriar.

The mere whisper of the name into his mobile phone sets a sinister chain of surveillance in motion across the Atlantic and brings Bourne initially to London in search of his identity, before globetrotting his way back to the US for a dramatic climax amid the skyscrapers of New York.

Guaranteed to send even the most lackadaisical viewer into palpitations and give adrenaline junkies an overdose, this superbly crafted, perfectly cast thriller demolishes previous expectations of the genre and could see 007 loosening his bow-tie and handing back his gimmicks before retiring to the Cotswolds.

GIRL POWER?: Four friends unite in BRATZ: THE MOVIE (s)

Living dolls in it for the unity

BRATZ: THE MOVIE
certificate PG, running time 1h42m

A FILM based on a range of toy dolls, this has not been received well by critics – in fact, in the US, where it was released a fortnight ago, one reviewer observed wryly: “This is why the terrorists hate us”.

The plot follows friends Yasmin (Natalie Ramos), Jade (Janel Parrish), Sasha (Logan Browning) and Cloe (Skyler Shaye) as they enter Carrie Nation High School and attempt to stop themselves being pulled apart by banding together as ‘The Bratz’.

Uniting to fight peer pressure, they learn how empowerment means standing up for your friends, being true to yourself and living out your dreams and aspirations, as they work hard to spread the values of honesty, camaraderie and friendship. If you haven't had to reach for something to throw up in yet, then it might just be for you.

War classic to stir the spirit

HENRY V
certificate U, running time 2h17m

UNDOUBTEDLY the definitive screen version of the Bard's epic drama, Laurence Olivier shines in an heroic performance as the warrior king in this peerless adaptation from 1944.

Commissioned by the British Government to buoy the nation's spirits in the dark days of the Second World War, Olivier's directorial debut is a triumph against the odds, transforming a limited budget (the opening scenes are shot in the Globe theatre against painted backdrops) into a cinematic masterpiece during difficult wartime circumstances.

Showing Tuesday only as part of the British Summer of Film season.

IF THESE STREETS COULD TALK

Just Surrender (album, Broken English)

An energetic debut from the hormonal emo upstarts, it suffers terminally by sounding identical to every other release of its ilk, inevitably consigned to the bargain bins of secondhand record stores. The obligatory genre checklist has been meticulously scrutinised during its production – shouty vocals, staid riffs, pneumatic drumming and risible lyrics all present and correct, complemented by questionable haircuts, ironic T-shirts and indescribable angst. Yet another work of absolute mediocrity.

PRINZHORN DANCE SCHOOL

Prinzhorn Dance School (album, DFA)

Deconstructing two-chord simplicity with the steady hand of a paranoid butcher, the eponymous debut from the South Coast duo is over-burdened with sardonic, post-punk irony yet critically understaffed in terms of discernable musicianship. Clutching at a minimalist aesthetic and jogging with it into neo-absurdist territory, this is music as art as nonsensical pretence. Although kudos must go to Tobin Prinz for rhyming “NHS” with “egg and cress” on Worker, the album otherwise seems to consist of

However, this is cleverly shot as a mockumentary following teen penguin surfer Cody as he competes in the Big Z Memorial Surf-Off on Pen Gu island, the film really shines with the introduction of laid-back, washed-up surfing hero Geek (Jeff Bridges, brilliantly reprising his role as The Dude in The Big Lebowski) who teaches his young protégé that winning isn’t everything.

RUSH HOUR 3. The third instalment in the martial arts comedy action franchise reunites Chris Tucker, who plays Los Angeles detective James Carter, with the legendary Jackie Chan, as Chinese cop Chief Inspector Lee. After previous outings in America and China, in which the two characters take turns at playing fish out of water, this time both find themselves strangers in a strange land when they travel to Europe to battle the Paris wing of a Chinese organised crime family.

The destructive appetites of men

TAXIDERMIA
(Tartan Video, 18, retail)

Hungarian director György Pálfi wants to show you that the way to a man’s heart is literally through his stomach – but go prepared, because it’s a seriously messy journey. Into a rich soup of magical realism and pitch-black humour, he stirs in a lot of sexually provocative, boldly audacious imagery along with a welter of gross bodily functions to tell the tale of three generations of men driven by different hungers and discovering uniquely destructive solutions to satisfying them. The story starts with young soldier Vendel in the Second World War, whose frustrated desire for his superior’s wife and daughters becomes an animal obsession burning (from the strangest of places) beyond his control which, when finally consummated with the former on a butchered pig, results in his illegitimate son Kálmán being born with a pig’s tail. The boy grows up to be one of the Hungarian army’s champion speed-eaters in the 1960s and the quite literally stomach-turning scenes of he and his fellow ‘athletes’ pounding down blocks of horse sausage and hurling violently between bouts recall nothing so much as Mr Creosote from Monty Python’s The Meaning Of Life. But his slender son Lajos branches out into a very different kind of stuffing, working as a taxidermist even as his father becomes an immobile grotesque. Pálfi ties up all these obsessions in an elegant, memorable but frankly revolting manner and you’re left wondering whether you’ve just viewed a condemnation of harmful male appetites, a sly critique of Hungary or merely a cavalcade of male monstrosities.

THE TRIBE THAT HIDES FROM MAN
(Network, E, retail)

A fascinating documentary from 1970 that’s even more pertinent now than 37 years ago, Adrian Cowell and his crew spent two years with brothers Orlando and Claudio Villas Boas in an unexplored region of the Amazon rainforest as they attempted to make contact with the secretive Kreen Akrore tribe. They’re just a step or so ahead of the inevitable advance of the outside world of prospectors and loggers and believe the tribe’s only chance of surviving the encounter is to relocate it to a reservation. There’s a strong sense of this production flying by the seat of its pants into potentially dangerous territory, a sensation intensified by the remarkable footage and sound recordings of the primal jungle and the alien customs of the peoples it encountered, until its feels as much like a Werner Herzog film as a documentary.

BUY IT NOW
(Dogwoof Pictures, 15, retail)

Antonio Campos may have intended a stinging critique of blank generation consumer culture values but what he ultimately offers is as self-conscious and awkward as any first time film school project. Chelsea Logan is convincing enough as Chelsea Magan, a bored, 16-year-old, coke-snorting New York airhead whose equally vacuous friend cajoles her into selling her virginity on eBay. However, Campos overstretches the none-too-convincing idea of his original half-hour short way past breaking point by effectively remaking it as a camcorder confessional prologue and bolting the two together.

Star rating: ★

FOLLYFOOT
(Network, PG, retail)

Broadcast in 1971 for the then-newly identified young teens market, Follyfoot became a big hit, not least for its memorable theme tune The Lightning Tree, performed by The Settlers. Gillian Blake is young adult Dora, sent to live with her genial uncle (Desmond Llewelyn) where she discovers new friendships and passions down on Follyfoot Farm, his rest home for old or injured horses. The 13 episodes of series one in this two-disc set generally have a lot to say about the sometimes cruel treatment of animals (and people) and it doesn’t sugar the pill for a younger audience – Follyfoot certainly doesn’t flinch from the sometimes grim realities of a life in the country. Its storylines are quite compelling and self-contained with a smattering of gentle humour, benefiting from a solid ensemble cast including Arthur English, and episode directors include such future successes as Stephen Frears and Michael Apted.

Star rating: ★★ ★

MAMMOTH
(Momentum Pictures, 15, retail & rental)

Space aliens crash on Earth and, for reasons I must have missed while blinking, decide to re-animate the body of a 40,000-year-old mammoth and take it out for a destructive test drive around the small town. This Sci Fi Channel original has its tongue spot-welded to its cheek as it intentionally lampoons the often-rickety ’50s monster-on-the-loose B-movies. But that can be a dangerous game as those films didn’t deliberately set out to be stupid and Mammoth clearly did – what to make of a script that posits an ancient mammoth frozen in a large chunk of ice and on open display in a museum with no evident refrigeration? When it comes to life, it’s a crude but passable CG creation (although, like the atrocious US remake of Godzilla, its size varies wildly) but is used far too sparingly, leaving the film for the most part to be carried by a cast hamming it up to the back tusks. Goofy, disposable and undemanding, but it’s sad to see Tom Skeritt lost in a throwaway comedy role and you can’t help but think it might have been a lot funnier had it just played it straight.

Star rating: ★★

GRAY MATTERS
(Momentum Pictures, 12, retail & rental)

How to get a boyfriend/husband to sit through a would-be screwball, ’40s-style romantic comedy without resorting to trickery, restraints or sedatives? Hey, how about making Heather Graham a gratuitous lipstick lesbian? Yep, this glittery love triangle is as cynically contrived as Madonna and Britney’s moment of lip-locking and what’s meant to be a light, frothy confection of romance and winsome love blunders comes out of the blender looking like a knickerbocker glory spray-painted metallic blue and pebble-dashed with hundreds and thousands. New Yorkers Gray (Graham) and her brother Sam are so spookily alike that everyone takes them for a couple, so is it entirely a surprise they should both fall for red hot Charlie?

Star rating: ★

interchangeable, insufferably primitive bass lines punctuated by oh-so-droll sixth-form socialist witticisms.

BANG BANG BOOM CAKE
Tiny Masters Of Today (album, Mute)

Fair play to New York siblings Ivan (13) and Ada (11) for writing and recording their own album: one day their undisguised aspiration to be The White Stripes for a new generation may come true. For now, though, their appeal is purely novelty value. The lo-fi tunes are of the boring simplicity you’d expect from children and their playground chant singing voices don’t make for pleasant listening. Like a school band demo tape.

Marcus Intalex (album, Fabric)

Now a well-established UK institution, those generous folk at arguably London’s finest club present us with a choice selection of seductive, hypnotic grooves and deliciously melodic drum ’n’ bass at its finest, mixed by veteran innovator Marcus Intalex. The closest you’ll come to recreating the blood, sweat and beats of Fabric in your front room and highly recommended.

WIN a fun family pass to Willows Farm Village

WE have teamed up with Willows Farm Village, at London Colney near St Albans, to celebrate its fifth birthday by giving away eight family annual passes worth £149 each.

Willows Farm Village is bustling with delightful farmyard animals including sheep, goats and pigs, plus more than 300 guinea pigs in their very own village.

There is also a special animal nursery where children can meet proud mums and their newborns in Willow's own maternity wing.

Annual passes offer unlimited entry to the popular farm village, including fast track entry on Bank Holidays and at busy times.

There are also three information-packed newsletters a year, invites to two exclusive annual pass member events, special offers and discounts including 10 per cent discount on children's birthday parties and a complimentary gift every winter. And during Willows' Summer Spectacular – which runs until September 2 – highlights include traditional sports day games, the A-maize-ing Maze, Bird-o-batics falconry displays, Sheepstakes sheep racing, Daft Duck Trials and Farmyard Ferret Fun.

Visitors will also be able to learn about Willows Farm Village's 10 different breeds of sheep in the famous Willows Sheep Show.

But that's not all – Willows Farm Village is also home to some unusual animals from distant lands, including playful chipmunks, bouncing wallabies and even reindeer!

The farm village also offers an array of activities for energetic youngsters including Leaping Lily Pads trampolines, Tractor Trek, Tree House Adventure, new Build & Play, panning for gold and an under-fives outdoor play area.

Children can also enjoy fairground rides, children's shows and board Tristan the Runaway Tractor trailer ride, who will delight all with his tales of farmyard life.

All you have to do to stand a chance of winning one of the family passes is answer the simple question in the coupon and follow the entry instructions.

Make a Date

<http://dating.hertssexnews.co.uk>

Your stars with Patrick Arundell
to guide you through the week ahead

Aries Mar 21-Apr 20
Do you have any perfectionist tendencies Aries? For if you do, this week these can surface. However, even if you don't see yourself as a stickler, irritation can surprise you by rising up from the depths. People can also spring unexpected points of view. In love you can veer between a sense of wonder and worry. Try not to buy too much into the latter. Call for more on a powerful Lunar Eclipse.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23
As the week begins, someone can be plainly unfair but what can grate most is that you can be last to know about it. When you do, and if there is also deceit, your response can be fiery. At work, you can yearn for a change or a change of routine. Pleasingly, wonderful new opportunities can be triggered by the potent Lunar Eclipse. Call me for your health scope Libra if nervous tension is high.

Taurus Apr 21-May 21
A business idea needs to convince loved ones and if it's not well planned it simply won't. Yet you can have a talent for utilising your earthy sense of humour and quick wits. These can be important if you want to create a sparkling impression. Solo? A colleague can intrigue and propose a surprise date. Settled? Create greater variety Taurus. Call me now for your romantic scope in full.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22
Socially things come out of the blue. But then those off the cuff outings and nights out can often turn out to be the most fun. So, make sure your glad rags are well pressed and ready to go. Involved? A partner may feel a bit pushed out if you venture out without them but spontaneity is the order of the day. Work in a team? The buzzier the better. Call me to hear which signs you can click with.

Gemini May 22-Jun 21
A boss may startle you with a proposal. If you're fairly happy you may not be impressed. Try to be open minded Gemini, a change is as good as a rest. Then again you can find yourself applying for a role in a completely different field. Romantically, your words or someone you fancy can have a dreamlike quality. Is that all it will be? Call me to handle the tricky influence of your ruler.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21
Been hankering over moving or improving your home, or simply unsettled in yourself? This week can see events speed up, but not necessarily in the way you expect. Other people's demands could feature, as can professional changes. The chance to work in a new area could, for example, see you considering upping sticks. Don't be too impetuous. Call me to exploit your imagination.

Cancer Jun 22-Jul 23
If you've yet to get away for a holiday, keep a bag packed. The chance to travel can break very quickly. You may also be offered the chance to attend a course that'll help you to upgrade your skills, especially technically or around new media. If someone asks you for a loan, be cautious. Mysterious vibes can cloud your judgement. Call to hear how to create more excitement.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20
You simply will have your say. It's been a growing pattern in the last couple of years but this week the desire to speak out could be stronger than ever. Be aware folk have long memories so don't be too hasty. A fascination with gadgetry can see you intrigued by a labour saving device or the latest gizmo. A sibling can visit and it can be lively fun. Call to hear why learning new skills is cool.

Leo Jul 24-Aug 23
One minute you can find yourself daydreaming about someone the next they can be on the phone keen to meet. Business moves can also break quickly. Yet as much as options can rapidly ignite they can also burn out at the speed of light. The Eclipse suggests that long-term finances, property and partnership need grappling with. Call me to hear why both Virgos and Pisces can attract you.

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19
You can be way ahead of your time but your more unusual ideas or personality can now find a receptive audience. However, you might not get everything on your terms. A bit of give and take will help to ease your path. Have children? They may ask for help and it could be financial. Solo? An earthy Virgo can stir your senses. Call me if a new way of earning a living appeals to you.

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23
The Lunar Eclipse, in Pisces, can prove to be a turning point. There is going to be a lot of energy and action around you but defining the direction you really want to take may require more time. However, you could feel impulsive and this can see you hopping from one thing to the other. Watch you don't chase unobtainable dreams Virgo. Call to hear why a new start is possible — in love.

Pisces Feb 20-Mar 20
The trick is balancing your individuality with the need to be on good terms with others. A really good relationship will enable you to do this, but where there are politics is when things can get stickier. Some Pisces may consider breaking free of a restrictive tie. Just make sure you explore every option before deciding a final break. Call your Special Prediction for more detail.

Century man is a Coutts above the rest

RORY Coutts made his first league hundred for Sawbridgeworth but his side were unable to force a victory against lowly North Mymms on a bland wicket.

Coutts, who came in when the score was 37-1, survived a dropped catch when on 59. He exploited this and stayed to make 100 not out from 143 balls on Saturday before skipper Danny Wilson declared after the visitors had reached 269-4 from 57.4 overs. Support for Coutts came from Wilson (48), Andrew Richardson (40) and Phil Marshall (37). In reply, Kyle Claxton was trapped lbw for 6 by Joe Rudkin, before useful innings' came from Rhys Wynne (36) and Neil Bamford (32).

Wynne was caught at deep third man by Paul Reed off Richardson and Bamford was caught behind off Joe Hurst. However, Mark Saxby, thrived once more against a side he surely has an Indian sign over. He reached a half-century from only 43 balls, dominating a fourth-wicket stand of 74 with Kwesi Roy.

(Home Counties Premier League, division two east)

Roy scored 13 before he was dismissed via an excellent stumping by Simon Greenall off Ryan Cunningham. Saxby, reprieved by two dropped catches, enabled Mymms to reduce the target to 67 from 14 overs.

Seamer Michael Burrell was then introduced and from his fourth ball he had Simon Clements caught at mid-wicket by Richardson for 13.

Richardson, back after a two-week absence through injury, then got the key wicket when he bowled Saxby for 93.

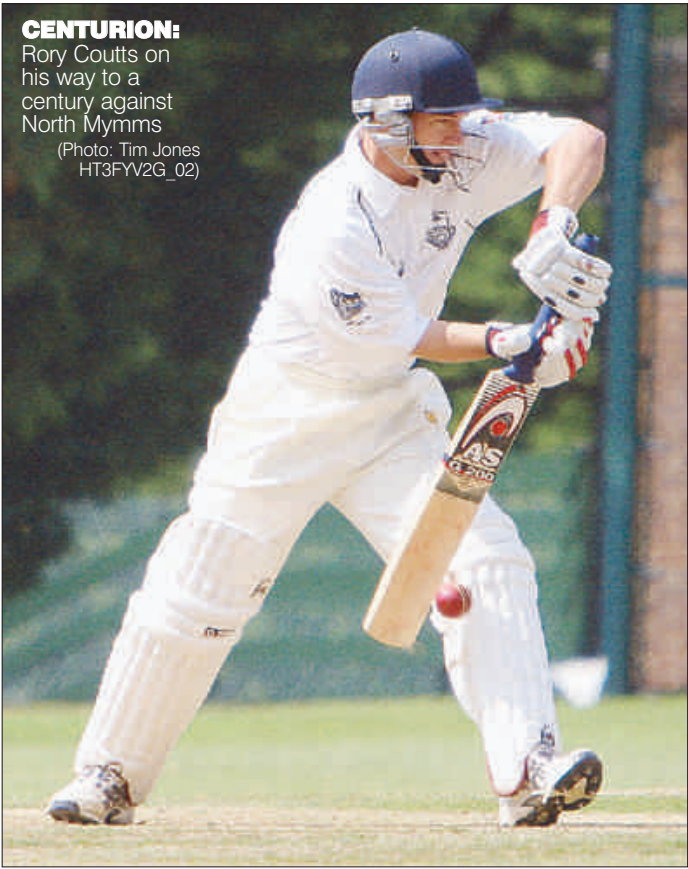

At 208-6 after 41 overs, Mymms still had a chance of victory, but settled for the draw scoring only 30 and losing two wickets from the last 11 overs with Dominic Donovan notching 24 not out from 20 balls.

Rudkin (2-23) Richardson (2-45) and Burrell (2-21) took most wickets.

New-look attack to face top test

Southend-on-Sea 279-7, Harlow 220-8

Match drawn
(Shepherd Neame Essex League, division two)

THERE is likely to be a different new ball attack for Harlow when they play league leaders Basildon & Pitsea at home this Saturday.

Mark Green and New Zealander Brad Winger have been the regular opening bowlers this season.

But Green has been playing as a batsman for the second team because of a shoulder injury while Winger has just been sidelined for the season with a back injury.

Zap Nazir and the rapidly improving Luke Heskett will probably open, while Nick Baxter will step up from the second team to fill the third-seamer slot.

Harlow skipper James Butler said: "Mark is unlikely to make it this Saturday and Zap has opened the bowling for West Essex for many years.

"Brad would have liked to have taken more wickets for us. He has bowled well and been too good [beating the bat]."

Harlow are sixth in the table after drawing at Southend-on-Sea on Saturday.

The hosts batted first and Ben Wathen gave them a good start scoring 65. However, after Heskett dismissed him Southend lost their way and slipped to 140-6.

The second part of the innings was rescued by Fahad Masood who struck an aggressive 74.

Southend eventually totalled a massive 279-7. Heskett (3-39) and spinner Nick Butler (3-64) were Harlow's main wicket takers.

Masood, a former Pakistan A player, has a long run up and Harlow knew they were unlikely to face more than 40 overs.

Nick Butler and Nilesh Odedra put on 90 for Harlow's first wicket, but when the former fell for an excellent 64, Harlow's run chase faltered.

Wickets fell and the captain, batting at number six, called off the run chase when he was dismissed for 20 with Harlow more than a hundred short.

Two more wickets fell, but Heskett and Darren Green defied the pacey Masood at the end to ensure the draw.

The Harlow skipper said: "We were batted out of the game a bit, but I am pleased with the resolve the lads showed.

"It was an awesome knock by Nick. At the beginning of the season we might have been bowled out for 150."

Harlow II's (218-6, Tim Harvey 55, Mark Green 52) drew with Wickford seconds (160-9) in division one of the 2nd XI championship.

In division one of the 3rd XI championship, Harlow (185, Jamie Baker 45 not out) lost to Chingford (189-5) by five wickets.

Harlow fourths (157-7) drew with Loughton fifths (200-3) in 4th XI championship west division.

Epping 202, Old Parkonians 204-9

Epping lost by one wicket
(Shepherd Neame Essex League, division three)

AN exciting finish saw Epping lose by just one wicket at Old Parkonians in division three of the Shepherd Neame Essex league on Saturday.

Responding to Epping's score of 202, Old Parkonians (204-9) were made to work hard on the way to reaching the target.

James Swash played a key innings for the hosts, scoring 89 but his efforts could have been in vain had Dean Majeed been able to bowl out the home side's number 11.

Majeed, Epping's most successful bowler with 5-59, was unable to get a sixth wicket to win the match.

He only four balls at the last man. At that stage the game was well poised with Old Parks on 200-9, before the necessary runs arrived to secure the points.

Earlier, Epping had been indebted to acting skipper Dan Sibley (regular captain Geoff Maynard is away on holiday), who continued his prolific form as he top scored with 54.

Victory puts Town on brink of promotion

HARLOW Town moved a step closer to promotion with a thumping nine-wicket home victory over Bengeo.

Bengeo batted first and had no answer to Marc Lowers and Dan Calver, who claimed early wickets with straight bowling.

The visitors struggled to hit the ball off the square and Town's skipper Vic Goddard exacted a vice-like grip on the batsmen, conceding just three runs from 10 overs!

But Town's main wicket takers were Calver (3-9) and Ramya Upadhyay (3-22).

By contrast, Town's progress was brisk as

Bengeo 65-9, Harlow Tn 66-1

Harlow Tn won by 9 wkts
(Ten-17FM Herts & Essex League, division four) they knocked off the target for the loss of one wicket in only 13 overs with Pat Yates (28 not out) and Ashley Norcott (33) scoring most of the runs.

Town are top of division four, ahead of neighbours Potter Street (240-9, C. Wahid 46, Alf Khawaja 43 not out) who are sixth after thrashing Farnham seconds (107, Alf Khawaja 5-22) by 133 runs.

In division six, Harlow Town seconds closed the gap on second-placed Buntingford seconds to three points after inflicting a first league defeat of the season on their opponents.

The hosts batted first and were bowled out for 145 with Ron Yates (4-21) and Paul Calver (3-27) being the chief destroyers.

Town were struggling at 2-1 in reply, before a good knock from Brian Lall (53) and Jack Elston (62 not out) ensured the visitors reached the target with more than 10 overs to spare.

Hard work for young athletes

IT was tough work for Harlow Athletic Club's depleted team when they finished joint last at an Eastern Young Athletes League meeting.

River meet off due to flooding

LAST-minute changes had to be made when Stort Valley Angling Society's coach outing to Sonning on Thames was cancelled because the river became flooded and un-fishable due to torrential rain.

Littleport on the River Ouse in Cambs was chosen as an alternative by the Harlow club.

Although conditions were favourable, the majority of those present struggled.

Ross Deadman, using maggots and worm in conjunction with a groundbait feeder, took The Hyde Harvey Cup with a fine mixed bag of tench, bream and a zander for a weight of exactly 18lbs.

Second place went to Steve Turnbull with 7lbs 8ozs, closely followed by Mick Westby whose catch scaled under 7lbs.

A total weight of 65lbs 11ozs was netted on the day.

Kirby's Hawks can roar

Hawks were promoted from division one north after beating AFC Sudbury in a play-off last season.

"We know we can be confident. We need to have discipline and patience. We can nick games if we play that way," Kirby said.

"There is a better standard [in the premier division]. The players are better, but it's just a confidence thing. I am happy with the way the side is playing."

Of his new signings, Kirby believes midfielder Jordan Fowler will be key.

The 22-year-old has Conference South experience, having played for Bishop's Stortford and Havant & Waterlooville.

"He will play in the central holding role in midfield. He is a bit more defensive minded," Kirby explained.

Meanwhile, the Hawks player-boss will step up his bid to sign a keeper as cover after regular custodian James Hasell suffered a fractured thumb socket during the friendly victory over Enfield Town on Saturday. Hasell will miss the opening league game at Leyton this Saturday.

Glenn Jackson, Harlow's number two keeper last term, has left the club.

Youngster Michael Dumoulin stepped in for Hasell last Saturday and could be on the bench at Leyton.

American keeper Ian Joyce, who has trained with the club, could replace Hasell.

Kirby explained: "If we can get his [Joyce] clearance we will get him and Tom Cunningham (Harlow's director of football) is speaking to other clubs."

"Michael [Dumoulin] did excellently when he came on. I would look to start with a bit more experience. It's a step up and we want to start as strong as we possibly can."

Kirby is awaiting a decision from ex-Spurs winger Danny Hill over whether he will sign for Harlow Town.

Kirby is also looking at signing another forward.

But striker Gavin Taylor and midfielder Reece Presedgedge have not been signed on.

Leyton will include former Hawks striker Sammy Winston in their line-up.

Harlow will then take on Heybridge Swifts at home next Tuesday.

Kirby said: "These two sides [Leyton and Heybridge Swifts] have been in this league for a few years and know what it's all about."

"I'm looking forward to it. It's a new standard and these are exciting times."

"It will be good if the supporters can get behind us as they did last year."

Hawks' gates averaged at about 250 last term, and they must push this beyond the 300-barrier this season.

JUMP TO IT: Hawks Jordan Fowler, right, rides an Enfield Town tackle (F3BVHGGD. 01). Inset, keeper James Hasell

Injury mars Hawks' win

THE impressive 2-0 friendly win over Enfield Town was marred by an injury to keeper James Hasell which could rule him out of the first month of the season.

Hasell will miss Saturday's league opener against his old club Leyton and more after he fractured a thumb socket in last weekend's 2-0 win.

He picked up the injury when he fell awkwardly after saving a weak penalty from Enfield's Rudi Hall in the 14th minute.

He played on until near the half-hour mark when he was replaced by rookie stopper Michael Dumoulin, who made two good first-half stops.

Mark Taylor had conceded the spot-kick when he upended Paul Campbell in the box.

James Bunn forced an excellent stop from the visitors' custodian Charlie Hasler minutes after the penalty.

The Hawks opened the scoring six minutes into the second half when Leon Lalite fired into the top corner.

Bunn's clever lay-off allowed Kenny Davis to drill home the second on 72 minutes.

Hawks player-boss Ryan Kirby said: "We were awful in the first half. We were too hesitant and in the second half we kept it simple and created a few chances."

HARLOW TN: Hasell (Dumoulin 29), Akers (McGowen 59), Taylor, Chapman, Miles, Kirby (Hollenbach 72), Lalite, Davis (S. Glidden 90), Bunn, Fowler, Williams (Green 70). Subs not used: Warren, M. Gliddon.

Wat's the story for Hammers?

BARROWS Farm welcomed West Ham Ladies for their first match at their new home on Sunday.

But the National League women's team will hope for better fortunes in the future

— after a 7-1 defeat to premier league side Watford. The visitors built up a 6-0 lead before Natalie Crinean netted West Ham's reply.

West Ham Ladies coach Tony Marshall is happy with his team's new home at Harlow Town FC. He said: "Barrows Farm is a fantastic facility, and I'm really impressed with the stadium."

"The venue is exactly what we have been looking for and we'll do our best to pull more people into the stadium."

Georgie Crowley, who will coach Harlow Town's new disability team this term, scored for West Ham reserves in a match against Watford after the main match.

She said: "This was our first game together so it takes time to gel. It's nice to bring the West Ham teams here to Barrows Farm."

Scoreline

LAST week we published the scoreline from Harlow Town's friendly at Stotfold as a 3-1 defeat.

This was taken from a report supplied by the club.

The score was actually 2-1. We apologise for this error.

Rugby club appoint fly-half as captain

NICK Ford has been appointed as the new captain of Harlow Rugby Club's first team.

The 25-year-old fly-half takes over a side which narrowly missed out on promotion from London division three north east at the end of last season.

Lock Paul Eynon skippered for the first half of last season before being laid low by illness. He returned later in the season, but scrum-half Lee Harron held onto the captaincy.

Ford was the second highest points scorer in the league last season despite missing several high-scoring games. He is also a good tackler and will again form a strong link with Harron at half-back.

The side missed out on promotion after finishing second and losing a play-off at London division three north west side Welwyn.

Ford, who comes from Kent, played for four clubs before joining Harlow two years ago. He told Star

Sport: "I have captained sides before and I am quite a bossy organiser."

"You always want to improve and this year we want to win the league after coming second last year."

Ford feels that Harlow need to have more weight in the pack and is hopeful the right personnel will be in place and that inside-centre Billy Stanley, a key player, will remain at Rams Gorse.

"If Billy Stanley plays he helps our creativity and it will take the pressure of me."

Ford says the scrum also needs some improvement. "We need a bit more weight for the loose and tight. Hopefully Lloyd Matchett (a lock from South Africa) will be back. He is a good ball carrier and has a physical presence," said Ford.

"Jamie Pope is back and he can play in the front and back row."

Harlow start their pre-season campaign in a 12-club tournament at Tring this Saturday.

Athletes so close in UK Schools Championships

FOUR Harlow athletes
competed at the UK Schools Athletic Championships at Sheffield's magnificent Don Valley Stadium.

Aidan Lee and Mark Hunt reached the final of the 400m, while there were great efforts
from Tom Larkin and Cherice
McKay, plus Epping's
Kathrine Foy.

Mark Hall School's Aidan qualified for the 400m final after winning his U-17 heat and semi-final in 50.4s and 49.5s respectively.

In the semi he recorded a personal best time and actually beat the eventual winner, Nathan Wake from the Ware-based Herts Phoenix
AC.

In the final, Aidan ran 49.8s, finishing 4th just behind Wake in a new Championship best time of 48.44s.

He was actually in the bronze-medal position in the last 10m, before he was overtaken by Nathan Hilton.

Afterwards Aidan said: "I was so exhausted my legs felt like jelly."

"I'm now looking forward to my winter training and what lies ahead for next season as I've another year in my age group."

Aidan has taken 4.1 seconds off his 400m personal best since last year and had only run it four times this year
prior to this Championship.

Passmore's School pupil Mark finished 5th in the same 400m
final in 49.8s, a fraction behind Aidan.

He was 3rd in his heat (50.99s)
and 2nd in the semi in 50.15s.

Cherice was 8th in the U-15
girls shot put with a throw of 10.09m.

Tom reached the heat stage of the U-15 boys 400m and 200m, where he finished 5th (54.26s)
and 7th (24.34s) respectively.

Kathrine competed in the girls
U-17 800m, but failed to progress after recording
2:19.71.
